

Casting Consultations for Colleges and Universities

With 20 years of experience in regional theater as a director, casting director and producer, I am well-equipped to guide your students as they prepare to enter the theater industry. I offer a variety of in-person and remote workshops and webinars, which can be tailored to the needs of your students. Fees vary according to scale and scope of each project – complete an inquiry form to start a conversation today.

In-Person Workshops

These workshops both involve student performance in an audition format and specific, individual feedback for students. Fees vary based on number of students. Schools must provide travel, accommodations and meals or per diem.

- First Impressions – This workshop simulates a general audition – an open call, a seasonal EPA or similar. Students select their own material and are given feedback on how they present themselves, their choice of material and their headshot/resume.
- Callback Clinic – This 2-day workshop is designed to prepare students for the audition and callback process. This workshop is crafted in collaboration with faculty members to simulate a professional process, involving self-selected material, assigned material, readings and/or a dance call. Students are given feedback on how they present themselves, their choice of material, their preparation of assigned material and their headshot/resume.

ADD-ONS:

- Demystifying the Casting Process – Add this 60-minute session to any audition workshop for an in-depth discussion about the nuts and bolts of regional theater casting.
- Audition Preparation – This 60-minute session is designed for students in the early phases of their training. It includes step-by-step guidance on how to prepare for different types of auditions and introduces students to the expectations of a professional audition setting.
- Digital Asset Consultation – This is a highly individualized service recommended for students preparing for an industry showcase. Students will submit headshots, resumes, websites and YouTube links for review before a one-on-one consultation (20-30 minutes per student).
