SAMPLE REVIEWS

Xanadu at Pittsburgh CLO Cabaret: "Director Kate Galvin has given the show another facelift by reducing the cast...This innovation allows for tons of imaginative doubling and fun interactions with the cast, the audience, and the band. Five actors may be playing upwards of double that amount of roles, but there is not an ounce of strain evident among them. Each member of the company was superlative in their own special way." - Brian Pope, Pittsburgh in the Round

Buyer and Cellar at Portland Stage Company: "Kate Galvin directs with a taut, fast paced manner, choosing understatement over flamboyance...[Dustin Tucker] accomplishes all this with a genuineness that avoids caricature and impersonation and seeks only to find the inner truth and humanity in the roles. Buyer & Cellar is a polished, moving, vibrant theatrical experience not to be missed." - Carla Maria Verdino-Süllwold, BroadwayWorld.com

Other Desert Cities at Walnut Street Theatre: "Under the fluid and assured hand of director Kate Galvin, the Walnut's Other Desert Cities is visually handsome and well acted across the board...it's an improvement over the Broadway version — on Broadway, it was hard to forget we were watching a series of bravura star turns. This ensemble actually feels convincingly like a family." - David Anthony Fox, City Paper
